THE OHIO SENATOR SAYS THE CUBAN RESOLU-

TIONS WILL SOON BE PASSED, Senator John Sherman, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs, was at the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday. Senator Sherman being from Ohio is naturally a McKinley man. Some politicians have considered it queer that the Ohio State Republican Convention, on the day that their Senator in Congress was being assailed by those antagonistic to the Cuban resolutions, should have emitted to pass resolutions or embody a plank in its platform upholding Senator Sherman. The Senator himself had no comment to make upon the out by General Grosvenor, member of Congress from Ohio, and the leader of the McKinley canvass in Washington, relative to the strength generated by the McKinley people and the number of dele-

"I have read General Grosvenor's estimate. I see he gives McKinley 255 delegates on the count. Gen-Grosvenor is a careful and painstaking man and he would not give out figures unless he believed them to be correct."

When the Senator was asked what he thought of McKinley's chances for securing the nomination he said that he believed they were excellent, and date now in the field." Mr. Sherman said that the situation in 1892 in the Democratic party was somewhat akin to the situa tion in the Republican party this year. In 1892 the Democrats of New-York were against Cleveland, it he was nominated despite the opposition of the

but he was nominated despite the opposition of the New-York men. That is the way with McKinley now, Senator Sherman thinks, and he believes that despite the candidacy of Morton, the Ohio man will get the nomination. He did not care to discuss the outburst of McKinley sentiment in the Republican State Convention last week.

Recently there have been reports that owing to the startling growth of McKinley sentiment, the other candidates would combine against him and pool issues to defeat him, making it the field against McKinley. Mr. Sherman was not inclined to take this seriously, for the reason, as he said, that the other fellows were all auxious to get it, and that if it came to a case of combining against McKinley they could not themselves decide who should be put up to make the running. Senator Sherman added:

"Should the candidates combine they naturally

"Should the candidates combine they naturally would have to put up some one to run, and the combination in selecting a candidate of its own might generate trouble that would be followed by a split. Besides McKinley is second choice in many of the States that have candidates, and this will, you must remember, operate favorably for him."

The Senator did not care to discuss the merits of the Cuban cause. He thought the Cuban resolutions would soon go through. He added that he thought the recognition of Cuban belligerency by the United States would do the cause of the insurgents a great deal of good. The Senator expects to be here a couple of days on private business. He met and chatted with a number of friends and politicians yesterday. He spent five minutes with Mayor Strong in the latter's office in the City Hali. "It was purely a friendly call, said the Mayor." There was no politics in it. No, we didn't talk about Major McKinley or any of the other Presidential candidates. You see, Senator Sherman and I are from the same town in Ohio. I was at the Senator's weedding. We are very old friends." Should the candidates combine they naturally

THE HENSCHEL CONCERT.

No local lover of classic song who has followed its ups and downs in our concert-rooms during the last fifteen years is likely to have been indifferent to the concert which Mr. and Mrs. Georg Henschel gave in Chickering Hall yesterday afternoon.
When Mr. Henschel came to America sixteen or seventeen years ago he put aside his character as a composer of the serious order and was content to appeal to our suffrages as an oratorio singer. It has never appeared that he won much admiration for the quality of his voice. It was not then, and it is not now, a beautiful voice, but there was no gainsaying his beautiful voice, but there was no gainsaying his beautiful musicianship in the handling of it. He sang like a master, and whenever he appeared the public went away convinced that, so far as he was concerned, the music had been most he appeared the public went away convinced that so far as he was concerned, the music had been most eloquently and convincingly interpreted. Later the people learned to know him as a conductor and composer, and always their approval followed him, as, indeed, it had to, for whatever he did had the stamp of authority on it. Meanwhile, his American wife, who had studied with him and imb.bed his artistic principles, worked her way to the forefront of our concert singers, and ever since the concerts of our concert singers, and ever since the concerts which they have given in comman have been occasions of pureat delight to all who know what good singing means. It was no surprise, therefore, that their concert at Chickering Hall yesterday afternoon attracted an audience of the elect among the city's music-lovers, and that their sinking was enjoyed to the utmost. It could not be otherwise, for they have had a large share in the development of appreciation for the kind of music which they have made it their mission to purvey. Hearty appreciation was expressed for everything, but it was after Mr. Henschel's tender Scottish lullaby, "Shouggie, show, My Bairnie," and "Spring," sung by Mrs. Henschel, that the applause reached its climax, and the lullaby had to be repeated to still it. It would be a pity if we were not to hear Mr. and Mrs. Henschel again before they go back to their English home.

It was the avowed intention to present a souvenir at the Broadway Theatre last night in honor of the 159th performance of "Excelsior, Jr.," but owing to some mistake in the manufacture the souvenirs were not ready. It was of bronze, and represented a moun-tain crag, with an image of Miss Fay Templeton leaning against it and holding a flag. At the bottom of the rock were an inkwell and a sponge cup. The inkwell contained a small quantity of rice and ex-cessior.

INDUSTRIAL MISSIONS IN THE SLUMS. Frederick Rotzler, who for the last seventeen years has been engaged in mission work among the slums of the city, is organizing the new Salvation Rescue Army. He says that his idea is to do something more for a man than to simply preach the Gospel to him and then turn him out in the streets to go back to his evil ways of living. He intends not only to preach the Gospel, but to fill the man's stomach and give him a but to m. the man's stomach and seven might's lodging. In Mr. Rotzler's opinion, thousands of men could be redeemed from sin by the establishment of industrial missions, where they could feel that they were earning all that they received and they would not look upon it in the light of charity.

and they would not look upon it in the charity.

He proposes to found an institution for men similar to the Margaret Strachen Home for Fallen Women, which has met with such gratifying results. This home took care of over 1,400 cases last year. Mr. Roftler estimates that it will require $11,000 to start the new enterprise. This he hopes to raise by superiptions and donatices. He would like to interest a number of rich men who have a desire to help suffering mankind. At present Mr. Botsler is engaged in preaching outdoor sermons at Thirty-reconder, and Sixth-ave.

Mrs. Myers declared that a previous will, made while she and her husband were estranged from each other, had been substituted for the latest will. According to her story she married Philip B. Villa Pigue, when she was twenty years old, and he died eleven years afterward. Mr. Myers's first wife died in 1891, and Mrs. Pigue, whose husband was dead, became housekeeper for Mr. Myers. Subsequently she married Mr. Myers. In January, 1895, Mrs Myers declares, Mr. Myers's family secured ascend against her. She says that when they were marrie favor. I will say is that at the time of the death of Mr. Myers he had a suit pending against his wife for absolute divorce. As for the $1,000, there was no such sum for Mr. Myers to leave Miss Cooper, His estate does not amount to more than between $400 and $500. He had never, to my knowledge, made a will previous to that of September 24 last, three days before he was drowned off Staten Island."

Mr. Myers, who was a member of the New-York Fishing Club, was drowned while on a fishing trip with friends, one of whom was Justice Giegerich, of the Supreme Court.

The probate of the will is pending in the Surrogate's Court.

Last night several additions were made to the tropical scenery in which the group is placed, so as to make the African jungle more complete. An excellent concert was given by the Musée orchesira, and the musical programmes of the week will be equally good.

There was an innovation in the bill presented at the Trocadero last night in the shape of a medley sung by the entire company and bailet. The grouping of the performers and chorus was effective. The appearance of Mile. Paquerette was received with delight. Eulalia, a dancer, made her first appearance. Ola Hayden sang some new songs and won admiration. In the heavy fog early yesterday morning the American Line steamship Parls ran aground several hundred yards below the Quickstep Buoy, in the Lower Bay, and not far from the spot where her sister ship, the New-York, was stranded some weeks ago in a similar fog. The liner remained aground all day, and finally was floated with the assistance of wrecking tugs at high water last night about 8:30 o'clock. She was not damaged to any extent.

During the afternoon a great deal of her coal was discharged and nearly all her water ballast, so that when the wrocking tugs made their final effort at high water the big vessel slid easily out into deep water. She came up to Quarantine, where she anchored a little after 2 o'clock, and several hours later started for her pier in this city.

The American Line steamship St. Louis was to have sailed for Philadelphia yesjerday morning to continue the alterations which were interrupted when the St. Paul stranded and she had to take her place, but the fog prevented. When the trouble of the Paris was known she was detained pending her being floated.

LOUIS CONVENTION. The confidence of New-Jerrey Republicans in the success of their Presidential candidate was shown by the enthusiasm in the convention for the VIIth Congress District of New-Jersey, held last night in Bergen Hall, Jersey City. The convention was called to order by E. W. Woolley, chairman of the County Committee, The temporary officers chosen were John R. Wiggons, of Hoboken, chairman; John J. Erwin, secretary, and ex-Alderman Dusenbury, assistant secretary. The Committee on Resolutions reported the following platform, which was unani-

We, the Republicans of Hudson County, in convention assembled, do reaffirm our belief in a tariff for the protection of home industries. We firmly believe in the Monroe Doctrine. We are unalterably opposed to any financial policy save that which provides for sound money, because we believe that any other cannot but do indury to our home interests and damage to our credit abroad: therefore, we are opposed to the free coinage of silver.

As Republicans we extend to all peoples who are struggling for liberty our heartlest sympathy, and trust that they may soon, like ourselves, be in the enjoyment of all those rights and privileges that belong to free men.

Northup, a large manufacturer of gloves, presided, and Alderman William L. Thyne was secretary. Mr. Northup said that the State Convention made a serious mistake in not naming McKinley for second choice, and that he attended this meeting to enter protest against the action of the Convention. Horace E. Smith was the next speaker. Mr. Smith said he was present to protest against boss rule, especially the machinations of Thomas C. Piatt. City Clerk John T. Morrison said that the meeting was called to organize a McKinley club. He hoped these meetings would be held all over the State and Nation and that the people would move on this St. Louis Convention and demand the nomination of McKinley.

David A. Wells was elected chairman and a committee appointed to select the other officers of the club and report at the next meeting.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Republicans of New-Jersey will hold their State Convention on April 16, but interest in It is lessened by the public avowal in favor of McKinley on the part of representative men throughout the State, as published in The Tribune of yesterday. While Jersey sentiment is overwhelmingly for the Ohlo leader, it is possible that the convention may Ohio leader, it is possible that the convention may refrain from saying so, owing to the candidacy of Mr. Hobart for Vice-President. His friends do not want to do anything to offend the other candidates. It will be difficult, however, to repress the McKinley enthusiasm, and if repressed, it will only be in deference to the wishes of Mr. Hobart. A Western man must be chosen for President to make Hobart's selection possible, and to that extent New-Jersey will be against Reed, but some of the cautious politicians across the river, when pressed to speak out for Mc-Kinley against all Westerners, softly murmur, "there are others," in the remote possibilities of the Presidential situation.

No Republican paper in the State is treading a thornier path than "The Buffalo News" in its ef-forts to straddle the issue of the hour in this State forts to straddle the issue of the hour in this State by supporting Morton and at the same time attack-ing Platt. Its troubles are without end. For ex-ample, on March 22 it came out with a double-leaded leader on the Raines bill, predicting its veto by the Governor, who, it declared, was "too big for the boss." Mr. Morton it declared to be an "independboss." Mr. Morton it declared to be an "Independent, vigorous, resourceful man," who would go into the State Convention, not as the representative of Thomas C. Platt, but to "stand on his record for character and wisdom and upright independence," Even the temptation of the Presidency, it insisted, would not induce him to sign the bill, nor could he be coerced. The Governor, it solemnly asserted, has "served notice on Mr. Platt in a letter that if the bill is not changed either in itself or by a supplementary bill, he will veto it. Leai P. Morton, and not Thomas C. Platt, is master of the situation." Alas! and alas! Before this touching expression of confidence was public property the Raines bill had been enriched by the Governor's autograph.

Mayor Strong's attitude toward the Raines bill has brought down upon nim the wrath and condem-nation of the bill's opponents throughout the State.

Replying to "The Evening Post's" attack on Mc-Kinley because he lost his property, "The James-town News" says: "Yes, Mr. McKinley is a poor man, but he has in him the spirit of statesmanship. man, but he has in him the spirit of statesmanship, the desire faithfully to serve the interests of the people, and in the discharge of his public duties he has neglected his private affairs, and subjected himself to the derision of minds which have no conception of success that is not measured in dollars and cents. Mr. McKinley's poverty is honest and honorable. It serves to keep him in touch with the masses."

Platt's failure in Brooklyn is greater than it was at first supposed to be. He not only failed to carry the majority of the districts, but the minority car-ried by his supposed friend. Worth, declared immerice by his supposed friend. Worth, declared Immediately for McKinley, and in doing so forced the administration districts to come into line for the Ohio statesman. In other words, Platt, in trying to play both sides, lost everything. As it now stands, there is not a delegate in Kinga County upon whom he can place absolute reliance.

Senator Chandler's declaration that Mr. McKinley was in the hands of unscrupulous managers leads "The Utica Press" to inquire what sort of a man is the most conspicuous of these gentlemen the various crimes on the political calendar, and is painted as a very bad and dangerous individual, who goes about with pockets bulging out with bank notes, with which he seeks to corrupt voters, delegates and whole States. As a matter of fact, says gates and whole States. As a matter of fact, says "The Press," Mr. Hanna is a very successful business man and one of the Mealthiest residents of the city of Cieveland. He never has asked for or held a salaried public office. Having large interests, he has a citizen's rightful concern in public matters. Three or four prominent statesmen can testify to the value of his friendship." Then it mentions Garfield as an illustration of this fact, and Sonator Sherman. "Three years ago," it adds, 'the political combination was made which threatened to turn the old statesman back to retirement. He was making an uphill and what appeared to be a losing effort to retain his piace in the Senate. Since the Garfield campalign. Mr. Hanna had not mixed or mingled in politics at all, but being convinced that the best interests of the State and the Nation required Mr. Sherman's services, he threw himself earnestly into the campalign, with the result that prospective defeat was changed to an important victory. He compelled Mr. Foraker, a younger man, to await his turn, but when his turn came, he had Mr. Hanna's entire approval for promotion."

Referring to the McKinley mass-meeting at Cooper Union, "The Syracuse Courier" remarks that whatever effect it might have on the Republican State Convention, "it will be liable to cause a good many Republicans in and out of the State to do a heap of thinking."

THE COMING OF GENERAL HARRISON.

son's marriage to Mrs. Dimmick on Monday next. Members of the ex-President's Cabinet are also expected to be here in time for the wedding. It was said last evening that other prominent citizens connected with the last Republican Administration would be present.

The gossip shout the friction in the family of the ex-President over his second marriage is emphatically and positively denied by those who are in close relations with the family. The fact is pointed out that the entire family of General Harrison dined with him last Sunday, and that they are also coming East to attend the wedding.

Despite the fact that the ex-President has positively declined to be a candidate for the nomination at the hands of the Republican party, there are many politicians who see in him a potent factor in the race even yet. They argue that in case of a deadlock in the convention the natural solution of the problem would be to nominate the ex-President. It has also been hinted that the machine politicians of the country see in him the only man who can possibly beat McKinley, and may centre their strength on him in the convention.

THE WEATHER REPORT.

A RISING BAROMETER.

Washington, March 30.—There has been a general rise in pressure in districts east of the Mississippi and in the Northwest, a slight fall has occurred in the Southwest. There are no decided features in the distribution of pressure in the Eastern district. A moderate depression exists in the Southwest, central in Kansas, while an extensive area of high pressure is entering the country from the North Pacific. The weather has cleared in the Northeast, except on the Northern New-England coast. Generally clear skies are found from the lake regions southward to the Ohio Valley and along the Middle and South Atlantic coast. There is a considerable area of clouds in the West Guif States and the Lower Mississippi Valley, extending to Tennessee. Clear weather prevails in Southern Rocky Mountain districts and the middle West, There is a second area of clouds in the Northwest, accompanied by light snow in the Northern Rocky Mountain districts. The weather is decidedly coder in the Northwest. It is warmer in the Upper Mississippi Valley and the temperature changes in other districts have been slight. Fair weather is indicated for the Atlantic coast districts and the lower lake region. Partiy cloudy weather but with little rainfall for the Guif States. An increasing cloudiness is indicated for the Upper lake region and the Upper Mississippi Valley and a general cloudiness throughout the Northwest, probably followed by snow.
